Borough Council Sees Debate on Ordinance, Township Back Dues

Though a protracted debate preceded Borough Council's vote on a bond ordinance authorizing $1.3 million for joint capital improvements between the Borough and the Township, the ordinance was approved unanimously last Tuesday.

When the ordinance was introduced, Council member Roger Martindelt characterized it as "a bond ordinance to fund foint programs where we put up bond money, we build the Township, and we hope that the Township pays us back."

Council member David Goldfarb added that the Borough's Finance Committee's auditor was "concerned that we have not gotten the money we are owed by the Township."

They were referring to monies that the Township owes the Borough that have yet to be paid back, the Township having paid $1.6 million in July after long negotiations over the exact amount of money owed.

"I'm retuctant to commit the borough taxpayer for these upfront costs," said Mr. Martindell, announcing that he would not vote in favor of the ordinance until the Borough had "more security, assurance, and evidence as to progress before incurring more debt."

Mayor Mildred Trotman noted that over the past ten or more years, "it hasn't always been the case that the Borough submitted bills to the Township in a timely fashion." In agreement, Borough Administrator Bob Bruschi reported that the "bilts from 2006 were submitted a few months ago."

"I hope the staft understands that it pains us greatly talking about who owes whom what, when we reatly should be discussing COAH or the University" said Councit member Kevin Wilkes. Suggesting that the Borough should "issue the invoice immediately" as part of its billing protocol, he noted that "most of commercial America works that way."

"Frankly, we're alf looking fairly bad in the whole process," said Council member Andrew Koontz, adding that "the level of vitriol that has been hurled at the Township is way over the top and has not acknowledged the Borough's responsibility." Noting amenities, specifically parks, that residents of both Princetons enjoy, he suggested the bond ordinance be handled more like those of the foint Recreation Department.

Holt Busy: Bailout, Battlefield, Anthrax

The current economic crisis, battlelield protection, and anthrax, are just a tew of the issues that Congressman Rush Holt (D-12) has dealt with in legislation over the past week.

Having supported the Emergency Economic Stabilization Act that was defeated in the House of Representatives on Monday, Mr. Holt explained that he "voted in favor of the Financial Rescue Legislation because it was a significant improvement... over Secretary Paulson's original $700 billion proposal, and because inaction could have a devastating impact on our already unstable economy."

Mr. Holt attributes the causes of the economic downturn to "the speculation and greed of Wall Street in recent years," and the "years of failures, excesses, arrogance, and irresponsibility of the Bush Administration and some in Congress."

Of the luture, Mr. Holt urged, "We need to act to ensure that retirement lunds and pension plans are not devastated by investments that have lost value in a jittery market." He added that he still plans "to lead an effort to fix the economy in the long term."

For now, legislators must "stand behind our institutions, restore confidence, and protect millions of Americans who would

The current economic crisis, battlelield be aflected by a continuing meltdown," otection, and anthrax, are just a tew of Mr Holt said.

A lew days preceding the House's rejection of the financial rescue legislation, it passed the Revolutionary War and War of 1812 Battlefield Protection Act that Mr. Hott had introduced to establish a federal grant program to protect such sites, including the Princeton Battlefield.

In July, the National Park Service recognized the Battlelield as a "Priority One Principal Site," meaning that it is of signilicant historical import and is particularly threatened by development.

According to Christine Ferrara, a spokesperson for the Institute for Advanced Study, "the 589 acres of Institute Woods and tarmlands contiguous to the Princeton Battlelietd State Park has been conserved in perpetuity, sinco 1997." Currently, the Instituto is "planning to build 15 houses on a site of eight acres on land owned by the Institute" and is "awaiting finaf permissions" from the Department of Environmental Protection before proceeding with the project.

President of the Princeton Battlefield Society Jerry Hurwitz said of the House's passage of Mr. Hott's bill, "We are excited and energized by the prospect of lederal assistance in the worthy cause of saving

Princeton School Board Discusses The $28,000 Question, Valley Road

While the reopening of schools this year proved to be smoothy "uneventful," according to Princeton Regional School Board President Atan Hegedus, there was considerable debate at last week's board meeting over the issue of whether or not to be pay $28,000 in dues owed by the district to the New Jersey School Boards Association (NJSBA).

Saying that NJSBA had failed to carry out its responsibilities, particularly with respect to a four-year old resolution submitted by PRS asking it to consider switching to electronic ballots in its elections, board member Joshua Leinsdorf reasserted his belief, expressed at the previous meeting when the issue was tabled, that the board should not pay its dues. As part of an effort to encourage informed participation in the upcoming General Election, the League of Women Voters of New Jersey Education Fund has posted an analysis of the two public questions that will appear on the November 4 ballot. The analysis, along with responses to a questionnaire sent by The League to all candidates running in New Jersey for U.S. Senate and House seats are available at www.lwvnj.org.

The first public question will ask voters to approve state authority bonds payable from state appropriations. The second public question provides that the method of selection and appointment of certain municipal court judges be set by statute rather than by the state Constitution. The League's analysis of the ballot questions include the question and interpretive statement that will be found on the ballot, as well as a background of the questions and reasons for voting yes and voting no.

The candidate questionnaire consists of ten questions that ask for the candidates' positions on education, energy, voter ID requirements, the economy, foreign policy, ties. The candidates' stances by district. on these questions can help

Fall Into Something Wonderful

It's now officially Antium. This week marked the day when there is equal light and darkness. Can you leel the change in the air?

The seasons are changing, and we are challenged with major transitions in our lives. There is major turnoil in our nation and globally — and changes in our own lives as we transition from summer hiatus to the rush of return to daily routines. How can we stay balanced and centered in the midst of personal transitions and external changes?

This is a good time to find nourishing activities. In our Mindfulness Based Cognitive Therapy for Depression program at the Princeton Center for Yoga & Health, we ask participants to create a list of activities that are nourishing and those that are depleting and to pay special attention to creating opportunities to put more nourishing activities into their lives. People are surprised to find how many activities in their daily lives are depleting and how they can begin to choose to do less of these over time once they see how they are done on "automatic pilot". And, they tend to be amazed at how simple it can be to draw from a list of things that nourish them, without great expenditure of time, resources, or effort

It is surprising that when we teel most stressed and pressed for time, we tend to let go of those nourishing activities that we need the most to sustain its.

So, why not take some time and consider what things nourish you most? Perhaps something as simple as a walk in nature? Cleaning out closets and drawers and donating items you haven't used for years? Volunteering your time? Taking a warm bath; curling up with a good book? Spending time in good company?

In days past, this was a time for preparation for the cold months ahead. So, how might you take special time to prepare – to care for and nurture yourself? Find the best ways to support the body at a time when it is adjusting to shorter days and cooler temperatures.

I invite you to share your favorite fall nourishing activities. Contact me at pcyh@mindspring.com am," she said, "but how can you access the freedom and beauty of your own mind if it's all knotted up with hate, fear, and anger?"

You might just "fall" into something wanderful?

Love requires a certain candor, honesty, and courage in an attempt to ensure that people are treated decently, noted Mr. West. "We've been wrestling with institutionalized greed, contempt for the vulnerable, and the politics of fear for the past eight years, and we're at a moment where it's running out of gas," he said.

The hypocrisy becomes stark when we see politicians rushing to help "plutocrats in trouble, but not children in trouble," and it's a hypocrisy that African Americans have seen "for centuries," according to Mr. West.

"I sympathize with the folks on Wall Street, because they're losers now too, but two weeks ago, they were indifferent," he continued.

Noting how abruptly the discourse changes, Mr. West said that people support lois-sez-foire capitalism because they're "just winning at the moment" but when the market collapses, "then you want to be a socialist." Murmurs of agreement could be heard throughout the auditorium.

Ms. Rashad recently played the character Big Mama in a Broadway production of Tennesee Williams's play, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof. Mr. West's latest book, Hope on o Tightrope, which is due out in November, will discuss the status of the future alongside these themes and others.

Teen Health is Focus
Of Library Database

The Princeton Public Library offers an extensive electronic reference center with access to the teen-specific database "Teen Health and Wellness: Real Life, Real Answers," an interactive research database and self-help resource focusing on the medical health and emotional needs of teens. It provides students with comprehensive curricular support and self-help tools on topics Including diseases, drugs, alcohol, nutrition, fitness, mental health, diversity, and family life.

Teen services librarian Susan Conlon believes the database is a powerful information source for teens on the complex and sensitive issues they face in middle and high school. "It provides teens with a choice to ask a librarian for help with finding information, as well as the opportunity to search on their own for issues related to their personal health and wellness, or for research purposes," she said.

Teen Health and Wellness information is presented using an age-appropriate approach and that is sensitive to the teen experience. It features authentic first-person teen narratives, interactive polls and quizzes, and national 24-hour hotlines for teens in crisis.

Supported by a grant from the "Horizon Foundation, Inc., the Teen Health and Wellness Database is available in the library without a library card and is accessible by library cardholders outside the library by visiting www.teenhealthand wellness.com.

TOWN TALK®

A forum for the expression of opinions about local and national issues.

Question of the Week:
"What do you think of how the economic crisis is being addressed?"

"I was glad that the President finally said that we do need a bailout, which I agree with. As a retiree and a Teamster I think that we need to make sure that the working people of this country are still safe and feel safe to retire so that their future will be there for their children and grandchildren."

-Philip Terrio, East Windsor

"I think that there are too many cooks. You have senators, congressman, the White House, the candidates all trying to weigh in with their different sides. There should be a core of experts to locus and tackle the problem. This solution may be the best that they can come up with now but there is no telling if it will be in the long run. However, something has to be done now."

—Brian Fitzgerald, Princeton Junction

"I really don't think that it is being addressed because they are asking the wrong people about the economic crisis. When I see all of these surveys and stuff I don't know who they're asking these questions. They should be walking around the streets and asking the citizens who are being directly affected."

—Mary Goddard, North Brunswick

"They're working on it, which is all that I can say right now. I hope that they improve the situation or we'll be back to hard times like when I was a kid many years ago. I think that they're doing alright for now." —George Scanlan, Pennington

"It's being addressed in a fairly typical fashion. There's enough attention coming from the government officials, enough panic to make sure that everyone keeps paying attention to it. It's a shame that government has to rescue businesses that have made mistakes and essentially spending money to save people who have failed at doing what they should do well. I'm not happy at seeing my tax dollars going to that."

"Slammin' Super Saturday" at JWMS Provides a Coney Island "Ton of Fun"

Princeton's version of tedly about getting to race to assist with the environstructures upon which to gymnasium. play, took shape at the 'Slammin' Super Saturday Carnival" at John Witherspoon Middle School last weekend. Proceeds from the celebration go to fund the yearly environmental field trip, which is a free overnight program for all sixth-graders.

The festivities felt like a front. In sharp contrast to the grayness of the rainy day outside, the entire event was a whirl of colors, the smells of cotton candy and popcorn pervaded the air, and the delighted laughter of hundreds of children could be heard.

Young people and adults operated the various booths that offered a chance to make photographic mementoes, test one's strength, and use a keen sense of hand-eye to knock down objects. DJs managed the music, while parents looking alternately overwhelmed and amused stood on the sidelines, watching their children scale inflatable mountains, or bounce around on the moonwalk.

As for the kids themselves, they were having the day's proceedings. Rescue Report

The Princeton First Aid Princeton Borough has re- & Rescue Squad responded ported the following warrant to 63 calls for service last

On Sunday, September Trenton, on September 21 at 21, the Squad responded for an intoxicated male. Initially, he was responsive only to painful stimuli. However, he then became completely unresponsive, with a weaking pulse, non-reactive pupils and diminishing respiratory patient's airway and transported him to University Medical Center at Princeton. In total, the Squad responded to 9 calls for intoxicated patients last week.

Later that day, the Squad responded for a bicyclist struck by an automobile. The victim suffered facial injuries and broken teeth as a result of the impact and the fall. The lethargic patient was secured to a spinal immobilization device and transported to Capital Health Systems Fuld Campus (CHS-Fuld).

On Tuesday, September 23, the Squad responded for woman who was reportedly bitten by two German Shepherds. She was found dizzy and tachycardiac, sitting in a large pool of blood. The crew bandaged the wounds, administered oxygen, and rushed the patient to CHS-

Saying that "it would be a desecration of the land to permit housing to be built on it," Mr. Hurwitz expressed his opposition to the Institute's proposed development, citing the area as "an integral part of the 🚽 Battlefield, where we believe George Washington's counterattack took place."

"The Berger Group has conducted an extremely thorough and professional archeological survey of the area in question," reported Ms. Ferrara, adding that they concluded that it is "very unlikely that any concentrations of additional artifacts concerned with the Battle of Princeton will be found on the building epic struggle for our nasite." She said the group's report "concluded that the amount of fighting that occurred in the project areas was very limited, and the major events of the battle took place outside of the project area.

Nonetheless, Mr. Hurwitz advocated further archeological study and evaluation of the land in question.

Mr. Holt's position is that such battlefield sites "provide a unique opportunity for Americans to experience where and how the tion's independence took place." His bill currently awaits a vote in the Sen-

Besides dealing with battlefield protection and the reinvigoration of the economy, Mr. Holt introduced the Anthrax Attacks Investigation Act of 2008 last week. The legislation would establish a congressional commission to Investigate the 2001 anthrax attacks, in which five people were killed and 17 fell ill, as well as the federal government's response to the attacks.

The origin of the anthraxtainted letters is believed to be a Nassau Street mailbox, which tested positive for anthrax spores following the attacks.

The apparent suicide in August of scientist Bruce lvins, who was reportedly about to be Indicted for the anthrax attacks, once again linked the anthrax case to Princeton.

Mr. Ivins's father was a 1928 graduate of the University.

The commission that Mr. Holt proposed "would help ensure that the families of the victims of the attacks receive the credible answers they deserve as to how the attacks happened and whether the case is really closed," he said.

next year.

This is specific to New Jersey," Teen Services Librarian Susan Conlon said last week at the Princeton Public Library's first College Fair. "People seem to appreciate that we're doing this," she added as she surveyed the students and parents stopping by information-laden tables staffed by college representatives in the library's Community Room. "They can focus on their specific options here in the state, without worrying about choices elsewhere.'

Seton Hall's admission assistant Kellen A. Smith reported that she had informed students about a variety of programs they had not known about before, while recruiter Maria Tazza noted the variety of subject specialties, including hospitality, funeral service, aviation, information technology, business, and communication, at Mercer County Community College (MCCC). Ms. Tazza also pointed out the variety of options offered by MCCC. from a "jump start" program giving high school students a leg up on college courses, to the "New Jersey Stars," high-achieving students who receive free tuition and assurance of admission to a four-year school school.

Referring to their busy and far-reaching travel schedules, Ms. Conlon noted that admissions representatives "loved the idea" of coming to Princeton. Those who were not able to come in person provided literature about their respective schools. Handouts from Centenary College in Hackettstown encouraged students to discover their 'passion for fashion," with offerings in apparel construction, textiles, sketching, portfolio development, and trend forecasting. Other participating schools included Georgian Court-Meridan Health School of Nursing, Stevens Institute of Tech-

Mr. Goldfarb warned that "the consequence of not passing ordinances is that everything gets held up," but added that he was "willing to discuss financial strategies to get the Borough and Township cooperating in a productive way."

Reporting that settling the debt is "a process that is con-tinuing," Council President Margaret Karcher said that negotiations were "moving along at the level of the CFOs" of both municipalities.

Though "improvements need to be made," said Mr. Goldfarb, "lots of routine payments go back and forth without a problem."

After much debate, Mr. Martindell amended his earlier statement, noting that he would vote in favor of the ordinance this time, "in hopes that it will prompt the administration to come forth with a written procedure" for ensuring timely billing and payment between the Borough and Township.

During the meeting, the Wilson Road reconstruction project and status of the Valley Road School building were discussed. Council also heard the monthly police report from Police Lieutenant Sharon Papp.

The north side of Wilson Road falls under the Borough's jurisdiction, whereas the south side is part of the Township. Since the Township is installing curbing along it's portion of Wilson Road, a resolution to approve an agreement with the Township for the reconstruction project was passed. Staff said that during the next Council meeting, an ordinance pertaining to Wilson Road would be on the agenda.

Following resident and Valley Road School Adaptive Reuse Committee member Jim Firestone's remarks on preserving the school building because of historical importance and the presence of a number of non-profit organizations within the space, Borough Clerk Andrea Quinty assured him that a discussion about Valley Road School would be on the agenda during the following Council meeting.

Lt. Papp reported that Borough police officers had to work overtime on September 14 because noise permits were not applied for by the University eating clubs, which were hosting bands during their "Lawnparties" weekend. The University will pay the cost of the overtime, she said.

Truck enforcement in the Borough has been "very successful," said Lt. Papp, adding that the trucks are stopped due to equipment violations, not moving violations.

In addition to the ordinance that sparked the debate above, a $2.3 million bond ordinance for capital improvements pertaining to the Borough only and a $31,700 bond ordinance for improving the Spring Street parking utility, including the garage, were both passed.

Mushroom Pate

by Dante Mazzocco, Whole Earth customer

As Fall slowly nudges Summer asule, we begin to embrace foods that take on more earthy and robust notes. One food that, not a vegetable but a fungus, embodies the essence of those rubust and earthy flavors is the mushroom. One delicious way to enjay mushrooms is in a pate—a versatile dish that can be served as a starter, an accompaniment, or the main course. Prepare using a single variety of fungtor, for a more interesting pate, a mix of cultivated and wild mushrooms

- 4 thisp sweet butter (plus more for buttering the loaf pan)
- 6-8 shallots, finely chopped
- 2 thlsp finely minced garlic
- I cup (or more) finely minced fresh herb mix:
- chives, parsley, rosemary, sage, thyme
- 2 pounds mushrooms, finely minced
- 1/2 cup bread crumbs
- Salt, pepper, and cayenne or Tabasco to taste
- 1 packet plain gelatin
- Harge egg, beaten 2 egg yolks, beaten
- ¼ cup heavy cream
- 2 tblsp sweet vermouth

The day before serving:

Generously butter a 4-1/2 x 8-1/2 x 3-inch loaf pan. Prepare shallots, garlic, herbs, and mushrooms and set in bowls near cooktop. Preheat

Melt hutter over medium heat in a heavy sauté pan that is large enough to hold all the ingredients. Add shallots and garlic and sauté for 2-3 minutes. Add herb mix and sauté for 2-3 minutes, mixing to coinhine Raise heat slightly and add mushrooms, bread crumhs, and seasonings. Sauté, stirring frequently, until combined and almost dry. Remove from heat and cool in pan.

In a large bowl, dissolve gelatin in 2 tablespoons warm water. Quickly mix in egg, yolks, cream, and vermouth. Add cooled mushroom mixture and stir until completely incorporated.

Fill loaf pan with mushroom mixture. Bake in the center of the oven over a drip pan for 1-1/2 to 2 hours, testing with a toothpick in the center for doneness. Set aside to cool and refrigerate ovemight to

To serve, bring back to room temperature and drain any accumulated liquid. Run a thin knife around the edge of the pan and unmold on to a flat plate or serving board. Serve as is or, after chilling slightly to make cutting easier, slice and place on individual plates. Serve at room temperature with baguette slices.

it can be risky, too, as Paul Iski, co-owner with Wayne Barnett, of Gut-Ster Services, LLP, points out. "People should know that there have been a lot of very bad accidents with homeowners climbing on ladders and trying to clean gutters themselves. We are licensed and insured, and we have the knowledge and experience to take care of your gutlers."

The Lawrenceville-based company has many regular customers throughout the Princeton area and beyond, including Mercer, Somerset, Burlington, Bucks, and Monmouth Counties. Its focus is residential, but the company

"It's very important to and downspouts, but most have the gutters cleaned regularly," explains Wayne Barnett, who handles the administrative end of the business. "If leaves and debris get ciogged up, water can work its way behind the gutter and cause a lot of damage. If it freezes in the winter, it can create weight, and may even cause the gutters to fall down.

Regular Cleaning

"When we install a new gutter, we sometimes find that the fascia board is rotled because of water getcan be avoided with regular cleaning.

In a worse-case scenario, he adds, water that gets behind the fascia board may get into the interior walls of the house, eventually causing damage to windows, wails, flooring, as well as mold build-up.

In addition to cleaning, the company provides repair work and installation of new gutters and downspouts.

"Repair can include tightening up the gutters, and making sure they are in good condition," reports Mr. Iski, who does the hands-on work and had previously worked in all areas of contracting. We also do a full check with each cleaning, including the downspouts, and we clean off the roof and patio."

Gutter Covers

New gutters are high quality and have a warranty of 20 years, he adds.

Also available are gutter covers. "We only offer covers with a proven track record," says Mr. Barnett. "We have a new gutter cover, LeafFilter, which Is a comting behind the gutter. This bination of plastic and wire mesh. This keeps out everything - leaves, pesky pine needles, seeds, twigs, even sand. Everything.'

> Gutters should typically be cleaned twice a year, in the spring and fall, he adds. it depends on the amount of foliage near the house. Areas with fewer trees may need a cleaning only once a year; those with many trees near the house could benefit from a cleaning three times a year.

Selling Point

Gutters that have not been cleaned regularly can produce all kinds of surprises, adds Mr. Iski, who has found

In these days of an uncertain real estate market, with more unsold houses than in the past, he and Mr. Barnett emphasizes the need for reqular gutter cleanings. "It is very important that realtors make sure that the gutters are clean and in good shape in the houses they are trying to sell. Smith + Manning Design & Branding Offers Updated Look for Companies see yourself? How do you want others to see you?

Whether you are a oneperson business, part of a small firm, or a giant corporation, the identity and image projected is crucial — never more so than in today's high-tech world of sound bites, virtual images, and short attention spans.

"We are concerned with what makes a good identity and a good impact," explain Sarah Smith and Cameron Manning, owners of Smith + Manning Design & Branding. "Establishing visual identity and corporate identity is the purpose of branding.

Opened in 2006, the company specializes in branding design that includes print, signage, and the web. Creating an identity for a new company or updating the design of an established firm is all part of the job. It can incorporate an entire program for a company — from business cards and stationery to print ads to a website — or any one of the above.

Creative Experience

"We recently designed a billboard for a company, and that was new for us, says Ms. Manning, who is the managing partner of the firm. "I like learning about new industries and companies, and all our projects are different."

The two partners bring years of creative experience to their endeavor. Ms. Manning was a former vice president at the New York City-based design firm Doyle Partners. White there, she served as project manager for the launch of Martha Stewart in Kmart and the re-branding of Barnes &

> Smith, a Princeton native, is a graduate of the Rhode Island School of Design, and spent more than a decade working for Landor Associates in New York, London, and Hong Kong. She created brand identities for Alfred Dunhill, Sandoz Pharmaceuticals, Singapore Telecom, San Miguel, and SilkAir. Among packaging clients were Heinz, NutriSweet, and United Distillers.

In Singapore, Ms. Smith was creative director at Addison Design Consultants, and projects included rebranding bankPOS, Jollibee and packaging design for CocaCola, Danone, Heineken, and Unilever. Developing the identity of China Airlines was a special design

Impressive List

Since opening their own firm in Princeton, the partners have acquired an impressive client list. Princeton area projects have included Lasley Brahaney, Liv Natural and Liv Organic, Princeton HealthCare System, Princeton Project 55, Princeton Young Achievers, and Rosetta Marketing Strategies. North Brunswick Transit Village, Sweet Holiow Herbs (in Long Island, N.Y.), Beth & Kate's Custom Nutrition, InfecDetect, and Johnson & Johnson are other clients.

In the case of Johnson & Johnson, Smith + Manning was asked to create a cohesive identity for J & J's Glob-

When a company moves to a new location or there is a change in leadership. these are appropriate times to consider new branding. "When there is a change at the helm of a company, it is often the right time to change their branding. Your brand matters. It can help unify your company, position your products, and share your vision with the world," notes Ms. Manning.

When the client is pleased, it is always a feather in Smith & Manning's cap, and at this point in the life of the firm, there is much to be happy about. "Clients say that with new branding and design, everything comes to life. It invigorates the client, and refocuses the company," reports Ms. Smith.

'It also has a positive imbrings increased recognition," adds Ms. Manning.

Janet Lasley, owner of the respected Princeton company Lasley Brahaney Architecture + Construction, is enthusiastic about the new branding package Smith + Manning created, including new logo, complete website design, advertising, collateral materials, uniforms, and job site signs.

sophisticated look. Smith + Manning were fabulous. In a couple of weeks, they came up with 12 different design logos. Of the 12, I loved at least eight! They said they wanted to project an image that was a clean and cutting edge design, while maintaining the traditional elegance we have been noted for. We couldn't have been more pleased."

In order to do their best for clients, Ms. Manning and Ms. Smith make a point of getting to know the company and its focus. "We do a very in-depth interview with the client which includes a questionnaire about their company, their targeted audience, etc." explains Ms. Smith. "We work very closely with the clients, listen to them, and then we envision a design and identity."

Adds Ms. Manning, "Every client is different, and what Sarah and I try to provide is clarity. It is important to project a clear message."

Because of their extensive background in the field, Ms. Smith and Ms. Manning have worldwide contacts whom they call upon as needed. As creative director, Ms. Smith works with a team of expert design free-lancers from all over the world, who contribute their design specialties to a project.

"Even when other designpact on the bottom line, and ers are involved, Sarah always maintains creative control over the entire project," points out Ms. Manning.

Literacy Volunteers in Mercer County Thank Library for First Literacy Day

On behalf of Literacy Volunteers in Mercer County we would like to thank the Princeton Public Library for hosting the first ever Literacy Day, held on September 20. With the help of Princeton Public Librarian Mary Lou Hartman, Connecting to English library volunteer Marilyn Shteir, Literacy Volunteer board of trustees president Glenn Moore, ETS Vice President Eleanor Horne, testimonials from students and tutors and our honored guest speaker, Rep. Rush Holt, we were able to put together an informative agenda to highlight the need lor greater awareness of literacy education in Mercer County.

An estimated 60,000 adults in Mercer County read at lifth grade level or below. The lack of basic skills strongly correlates with a wide range of problems - poverty, unemployment, crime, loss of productivity in the workplace, and lack of parental involvement in children's education. Research shows that as a parent's literacy level increases, so does the child's educational success.

Princeton Public Library, along with the participating organizations and Rep. Holt, deserve recognition for their efforts to combat this problem. We would like to ofler our sincere appreciation to them for their leadership in such an important matter.

Princeton as a Tourist Destination Risks Traffic, Noise, Litter, Crowds

The article on the benelits-without-costs of turning Princeton into a tourist destination (Town Topics, September 17) ought to have included "implementation tactics" like these:

- Get unemployed i-bankers to emulate Princetonians of historic eras by paying them to wear tweedy costumes from Langrock, The English Shop, Harry Ballot, and other shops of autumns past.
- · Market Princeton souvenirs, including toy replicas of the eating clubs, eyewear modeled on Wilson's pince-nez, snacks with names inspired by such writers as Fitzgerald, Wilder, Oates, and O'Neill ("Tender is the Bite," "Wilder-Oates Cookies," and "The Ice Cream Man Cometh"), and a fashion line inspired by Einstein, Godel, and Oppenheimer labeled "Look Smart."

That's right: these are dumb jokes. Yet not long ago, J was stopped in Palmer Square by a man who asked, "Where can I buy souvenirs?" I suggested the Princeton Historical Society, which sells Einstein souvenirs. As I walked along Nassau Street, I was reminded how few downtown shops today sell anything (light bulbs, vegetables) that Princetonians need.

Now visitors are fine. But the article said nothing about the costs of Princeton's promoting itself as a tourist attraction, an irreversible process. The article quoted Phyllis Oppenheimer of the New Jersey State Department's Division of Travel and Tourism as saying, "Name recognition can assist in drawing more visitors to the area, which would be a boon to the Princetons, the region, and the state." To which I respond, "How would It be a boon?"

Yes, getting lots of tourists to check out Princeton might bring money to some local merchants or, more likely, to the owners of the chain stores that have been proliferating. But what about the costs in terms of traffic, parking, noise, litter, loitering, and crowds? And what about the loss of our sense of place? Princeton is lamously "special" because it combines preeminent academic institutions with the high degrees of beauty, charm, comfort, and security that come from two centuries of wealth and nurture. By trying to prolit from tourist dollars, would residents want to accelerate the town's decline into McPrinceton, a sad

Moreover, what honest value will visitors receive as we entice them with advertising, whether paid for by taxpayers or businesses? Will they only get a day of gazing at students and spires, buying stuffed tigers, and posing their kids on Henry Moore's Oval with Two Points? Or will they get something substantive — perhaps a lew hours of learning about aspects of culture and history in a place made famous by learning?

Princetonians should resist turning our town into a tourist attraction. But if we lail and carloads of tourists do arrive, let's give them more than snapshots and souvenirs to remember us by.

The Books of Her Life: Anne Martindell's Gift to Princeton

self imagining the story behind a particu- it out, and satisfied my curiosity. lar donation. Beginning with the look and feel of the books, the storyline develops from the range of subjects, traces of the owner's identity in the form of elaborate inscriptions, or endpapers bearing person and place names and dates, or from clues such as makeshift bookmarks and the family photos that sometimes turn up between the covers. The plot thickens when you find underlinings and marginal notes, al-Though these markings usually devalue a book to the point where you hesitate to put it out for sale.

One exception to this rule and one of the most interesting donation back stories ever concerns the subject of this column, Anne Martindell, who died at the age of 93 in June. As i was going through the 14 hefly boxes of books from her library last week, I noticed that several volumes about the tumultuous events of that wild political year, 1968, contained penciled annotations suggesting her involvement in the presidential campaign of Eugene McCarlhy and the Democratic convention, Intrigued, i took home her copy of Charles Kaiser's 1968 in America: Music, Politics, Choos, Counterculture, ond the Shaping of o Generation. Although I had not then read Martindell's recently published memoir, Never Too Late (Boxed Books $29.95), the annotations I found in her copy of 1968 suggested that she'd used the book almost 40 years later in writing her own account of that period. Marginal notations appear in reference to the Spring Mobilization to End the War in Vletnam ("I was there"), other major war protests ("I was in NY and Washington"). In the margin next to the words of a coworker in the McCarthy campaign quoted as saying that she realized the "world was in the hands of people like me," Martindell noted, "my reaction to being elected," a reference to her election to the state senate in New Jersey some five years later.

The more I saw of the Martindell donation, the more I began to think it would be interesting to display these varied and suggestive pieces of an extraordinary life as a self-contained entity, something that worked out nicely with last year's sale featuring books from the library of the late Borough mayor Joseph O'Neill. In addition to wanting to know the story behind those marginal notes (as well as the underlinings in a biography of New Zealand painter Toss Woollaston), I was intrigued by the range of interests covered in Martindell's reading matter - politics and nical father. Because of the adversity she New Zealand, McCarthy and McGovern, had to deal with at home, her struggle and

Facing Challenges

What a contrast Never Too Late is to the oral history of Bella Abzug I was reading and reviewing a few weeks ago. On one hand you have a political dynamo from the Bronx shaking up Washington and the

Simply to survive so cold and brutal an upbringing would be a challenge in itself. it's the "poor little rich girl" story with a vengeance; in childhood her "principal crime was reading," and for that she was spanked with a hair brush. After a difficult boarding school experience, she finally begins to find herself in her first year of college (at Smith), only the triumphant completion of her education at Smith at age 87. And you're cheering her on through 1968, the year that changed her life, sending her into politics and the career that peaked when President Jimmy Carter named her ambassador to New Zealand. Probably the biggest cheer you give comes when she finally finds love, in her 60s, with that same Toss Woollaston whose underlined biography had you wondering and whose charming, semiabstract portrait of her is reproduced on the cover of Never Too Lote.

The events of 1968 gave Martindell passion and commitment to a cause, and her defining woman's-rights moment is the heroic equal to any of Bella Abzug's. Soon after she's tapped to become vicechairman of the Democratic party in New Jersey, she discovers that there is "a stark divide between the male and female roles in the party." Women are expected to "pour coffee and stuff the envelopes and be happy with little pats on the head for the good work." Refusing to accept what she considers to be "a female ghetto," she speaks to women's groups around the state, trying to "stir up" the envelope stuffers ("What did the women get, beyond perhaps a focus for their social lives?"). When she learns that the state chairman, Sal Bontempo, has called a meeting of the party "Big Bulls," she tells him she wants to be-there. Instead of backing off when she's told "the boys don't want any women there," she proceeds to crash the party. "I've studied the rules," she tells the all-male assemblage, "and I've come to represent the nearly 600 Democratic committee women." After a "dead silence," she's gently told that "rough language" is sometimes used ("We wouldn't want to offend you"). Her I-don't-give-an-"expletive" reply settles the question and makes the next day's news. That sweet moment of staring down the "Big Bulls" and becoming overnight "a bona fide political figure in New Jersey" was the prelude to her eventual run for the state senate.

The Anne Martindell contribution to this week's book sale may be scattered to the winds once the crowd at the noon Friday preview plows through the tables, but when and if you find a book on New Zealand, or McGovern, or McCarthy, or any of the other highlights of her fascinating life, chances are it once belonged to her, and now to the community, Ihanks to the donation given by her four children. PRINCIPLES OF THE BAHA'I FAITH:

- · Marriage is a fortress for well-being.
- · The main purpose of marriage is to bring forth and educate children.
- Good character is the foundation of all endeavors.
- · Each person is a soul who has a body.
- Education should serve to refine one's character as well as one's intellect.
- Each person's purpose is to know and to love God.
- · Prayer and meditation are essential to growth.
- · Baha'is are followers of Baha'u'llah.

The Baha'is of Lawrenceville, Princeton and Hamilton Township conduct classes each Sunday for children and adults and these are open to people of all ages and faiths.

For more information about classes and the Baha'i Faith, call Wendy Kvalheim at 609-683-8929 or go to the web at www.

Sunday classes are from 9:30 to 11:30 am at the Lanning School, 1925 Pennington Road, (Rte. 31) just south of the entrance to College of New Jersey. All are welcome. Please join us.

Biggest Ever Friends of the Library Book Sale Features Music, Rocket Science, Art. Rarities

The Friends of the Prince-books and art books. ton Public Library Annual Book Sale, which is sponsored this year by the Bank of Princeton and begins with a special 2-hour preview at noon on Friday, is "the largest, richest, and deepest one we've ever had," according to Book Sale Director Stuart Mitchner, who has been involved with the annual event for almost 20 years.

The strength of this year's sale can be attributed to books of special interest from the library of James Harford, author and authority on the history of the Russian space program; and from the estates of James Hillier, physicist and inventor; and playwright William McCleery.

A self-contained section of the sale is the result of a large last-minute donation from the library of the author, diplomat, former state senator and Princetonian, the late Anne Martindell, whose memoir Never Too Lote is reviewed this week.

German language books on art and literature, including some rare children's books, have been donated from the extensive collection of the late Victor Lange, former Princeton University German Department chair.

"We've got an outstanding selection of books on classical music this year," Mr. Mitchner said. "These include autobiographies and books on theory by composers like Prokofiev and Hindemith, and scores from the Dover series as well as a bound early edition of Puccini's Lo Boheme. People who still listen to classical music on vinyl will probably find some interesting bargains, though due to the size of this year's sale, records may not be displayed until Saturday. In fact, we have such a wealth of donations all round to get through, there's bound to be a Saturday overflow. We'll do our best, though, to make sure the best things are out on Friday."

Mr. Mitchner also mentioned a collection of books from the thirties and forties on Louisiana and New Orleans, along with the usual profusion of good children's Paperbacks, softcover and hardcover books are priced from $1 to $20, with special selections and collectibles published book on the hishigher, and unpriced hardcovers going for $3. All sale proceeds go to the library for the purchase of new books at 7:30 p.m. as part of the and audio and video mate- Thinking Allowed series co-

The sale will be held in the Community Room on the first floor of the library, 65 Witherspoon Street, opening with a Preview Sale, Friday, October 3, from noon to 2. Admission to the Preview Sale is free to members of the Friends; non- members will be charged $10. Numbered admission tickets will be available outside the Community Room starting at 10 a.m. on Preview Sale Day.

Admission is free from 2 to 5:30 on Friday and for the remainder of the sale: Saturday, October 4, 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and on Sunday, October 5, the Annual Half Price Sale, from 1 to 5:30.

Last year's Annual Book Sale, together with the daily Ongoing Sale, generated the highest income in the history of the sales.

The Book Sale Committee also includes co-chairpersons Barbara Freedman, Betsy Hoover and Bruce Kemp, plus members Paul Budline. Roz Denard, Meg Michael, Eric Monberg, Greenie Neuburg and Eve Niedergang. Friends Council members and volunteers from the Friends organization will staff the sale.

The daily Ongoing Sale is located on the main floor of the library to the right of the

Since volunteers are going to have their hands full this week, donations should be suspended if at all possible until after October 5. Otherwise, donations of books in good condition are always welcome, except for, among other things, textbooks, outdated travel guides and computer manuals, magazines. Book of the Month books, encyclopedias and condensed books. Books in poor condition cannot be offered for sale. Donors should ring the bell at the library deliveries entrance,

"Thinking Allowed" Series Examines Food Fraud

Author Bee Wilson will discuss Swindled, her recently tory of food fraud,, at the Princeton Public Library on Wednesday, October 15, sponsored by the library and Princeton University Press.

Subtitled "The Dark History of Food Fraud, from Poisoned Candy to Counterfeit Coffee," Ms. Wilson's book uses cultural and scientific history, food politics and culinary detective work to uncover the ways in which people have cheapened, falsified and even poisoned food through the ages.

Swindled argues that industrialization, laissez-faire politics, globalization, and consumer ignorance have all contributed to damaging the quality of food, from fake colfee in Victorian England to the phony organics and bogus milk powders of today. Ms. Wilson calls on governments to be more vigilant about food production and sales, and urges individuals to re-educate themselves about the joys of food and cooking.

'The blatant frauds of the 19th and early 20th centuries are set alongside the more subtle (and mostly legal) tinkering with food in the modern world," wrote a reviewer in The Times Literary Supplement. "Wilson places contemporary concerns about what we are eating in an original and thoughtprovoking context."

Another reviewer, writing for The Mail, said, "If ever a book could convince you that the only food worth eating is that which you have scrupulously shopped for in reputable local shops and cooked yourself from scratch, it is this one."

A native of England, Ms. Wilson is the award-winning author of The Hive: The Story of the Honeybee ond Us. She writes a weekly food column for London's Sun-accessible from the Wiggins day Telegraph and is a former food critic for The New Statesman.

> Thinking Allowed brings authors of new University Press titles to the library for discussions of their works. The series continues on Tuesday, November 18, at 7:30 p.m., when economist Raymond Fisman comes to the library to discuss the book he co-authored with Edward Miguel, Economic Gaugsters: Corruption, Violence ond the Poverty of Notions.

Torah to be Subject of Labyrinth Book Talk

Laburinth books will host a discussion between Rebecca Alpert and Elaine Pagels on Thursday, October 2, at 5:30 p.m. on issues raised in Ms. Alpert's recently published book Whose Torah: A Concise Guide to Progressive Judaism.

In Whose Torah? Ms. Alpert discusses the progressive values that she believes belong to the core of Judaism today. Examining the sources of dewish tradition, she highlights the textual basis for what she contends is a truly just vision of life for all who care about sexual, economic, and racial justice, and for those who would oppose all forms of discrimination, unjust war, and the destruction of the environment. She also considers what it means to be Jewish in contemporary America.

The chair of the Department of Religion and an associate professor of Religion and Women's studies at Temple University, Ms. Alpert was one of the first women in Jewish history to be ordained a rabbi. She has written widely on progressive religion and Judaism; among her books are Like Bread on the Seder Plote and Exploring Judaism (with Jacob Straub). She lives in Philadelphia.

Ms. Pagels, the Harrington Spear Paine Foundation Professor of Religion at Princeton University, is the author of books on Gnosticism and early Christianity, including The Gnostic Gospels, Beyond Belief, and Reoding Judos.

This event is free and open to the public.

Princeton Symphony Opens New Season With Solid Performance and Fiery Soloist

The Princeton Symphony is in its had a life of their own, and throughout the second transition year of searching for a new music director, and with each new candidate, the ensemble gets closer to clarifying its musical identity for this new period in the orchestra's history. The first candidate of this second year, Andrew Grams, brought a very detailed performance of the compositions of 3 "Bs" — Berlioz, Barber, and Brahms to the stage of Richardson Auditorium on Sunday afternoon, and the Princeton Symphony demonstrated its flexibility and attention to detail.

Andrew Grams came to this opportunity with the Princeton Symphony by way of a residency with the Florida Orchestra and three years as Assistant Conductor with the Cleveland Symphony. Also trained as a violinist, he was a natural to conduct Samuel Barber's Violin Concerto, Opus 34, the centerpiece of Sunday's program. Mr. Grams opened the concert with a spirited rendering of Hector Berlioz' Roman Cornivol Overture, in large part a reworking of Berlioz' own music from a previous opera. Mr. Grams reversed the stage placement of the second violins and the celli-double basses, and throughout the overture, maintained command of the tempi and musical effects.

Keisuke Ikuma opened the one-movement work with a rich English horn solo against very clean violins. Mr. Grams clearly emphasized the grace of the music and through well executed crescendo and tapering of phrases, the symphony found a characteristic French elegance. The violas also provided a very rich sectional solo, and wind flourishes were clean.

Mr. Grams seemed to enjoy cranking the piece up, without allowing the orchestra to become overbearing at its fullest sound.

The Barber concerto featured a young yet poised soloist, Canadian violinist Karen Gomyo. Ms. Gomyo, playing on a 1703 Stradivarius, continually gave direction to the long lines of the first and second movements of the concerto, and easily switched to the more virtuosic style of the third movement. As might be expected from Samuel Barber, the background strings of the scaled-down orchestra also first movement, the soloist was answered precisely by the winds. Ms. Gomyo played definitively, controlling the pace and expecting the orchestra to follow. Also notable in this movement was a fine clarinet solo by principal David Sapadin, and the close of the first movement was particularly clean among the soloist, clarinets, and flutes.

The second movement Andante was marked by a clean oboe solo by principal Caroline Park, with conductor Grams allowing the oboe to take the lead over the orchestra. Mr. Grams followed Ms. Park and Ms. Gomyo well, closing the movement in a grand and dramatic manner. Ms. Gomyo further proved her decisiveness in the third movement, In which she took off like a rocket with nonstop fire, and it was up to the orchestra to keep up, which they did nearly flawlessly. Through the precision of the players, the audience was able to hear the Copland and Bernstein effects which are also In this work.

Mr. Grams chose a standard to close the concert: Johannes Brahms' Symphony No. 2 is always good for this ensemble to play, and the players responded well to Mr. Grams' attention to detail and ability to bring out the Austrian flair of the work. The first movement in particular had a great deal of ebb and flow, with the celli playing the second theme smoothly and the horns playing cleanly throughout. Phrase crescendos and decrescendos were particularly evident in the third movement and both the ensemble and audience responded well to Mr. Grams' interpretation of this work.

lthough his continual mouth gestures might drive brass players a a good rapport with the Princeton Symphony and was well schooled in his music. His command over the Berlioz and Brahms works was evident by the fact that he never turned from the first page of the scores during the performance. He expected a great deal from his players in terms of details, and they delivered with refinement and finesse.

High Winds Ensemble In Westminster Concert

The Westminster Conservatory Gallery Concert Series will present the first of four recitals this season this Friday, October 3 at noon in the Rider University Art Gallery. Members of the ensemble High Winds — Katherine McClure, flute; Melissa Bohl, oboe; and Kenneth Ellison, clarinet — will perform. The recital is free.

The instrumentation of High Winds consists of the three highest members of the woodwind family: flute, oboe, and clarinet. The October 3 program will include three works from the mid-20th century that offer stulistic variety — Gustav Holst's Terzetto, the Trio 1 by Josef Friedrich Doppelbauer, and the Divertimento by Malcolm Arnold.

Ms. McClure is a regular performer with the Riverside Symphonia, Edison Symphony, the Greater Trenton Symphony Orchestra, and the Princeton Symphony. Since 1998, she has performed in a duo with pianist Esma Pasic-Filipovic. She teaches flute at Westminster Conservatory and the Lawrenceville School, and maintains a private studio in Kingston.

Ms. Bohl plays principal oboe with the Greater Trenton Symphony Orchestra and the Edison Symphony, and performs regularly with many other area musical organizations, including the Delaware Valley Philharmonic, Garden State Philharmonic, Boheme Opera, and the Orchestra of St. Peter by the Sea. She teaches oboe at the Lawrenceville School and is head of the wind, brass, and percussion department at Westminster Conservatory. She is also the coordinator of Koleidoscope Chomber Series, Gollery Concerts, and the noontime series Westminster Conservotory of Nos-

Mr. Ellison has performed with many musical organizations, including the Manhattan Chamber Orchestra, the Riverside Sinfonia, and the Greenville Symphony. He is a member of the Princeton Symphony woodwind trio for the BRAVO! program, the New Jersey Arts Collective, and TriplePlay Winds. At Westminster Conservatory, he teaches clarinet and saxophone.

Youth Orchestra Seeking Musicians for New Season

The Greater Princeton Youth Orchestra has announced that it is currently finalizing the roster of musicians for its 2008-09 concert season. All middle and high school wind and string instrumentalists are encouraged to apply to audition.

Special consideration will be given to students who play double bass, viola, trombone, trumpet, French horn, bassoon, oboe, or clarinet.

The Greater Princeton Youth Orchestra sponsors two full orchestras for students in grades 8 to 12, and two preparatory ensembles for 5th to 9th graders. As one of the oldest youth orchestra programs in America, GPYO is currently celebrating 48 years of providing musical enrichment beyond what is available in area schools. Nights in Rodanthe contemporary novelist who has had a book remain on the New York Times best seller list for more than a year. While Ms. Rowling has been publishing her series of fanciful Harry Potter books, Sparks has been writing over a dozen romantic novels, set mostly in the South, that have unusual plot twists that are designed to tug on the readers' heartstrings.

Three of his earlier works have been made into movies: Message in o Bottle (1999), A Wolk to Remember (2002) and The Notebook (2004). Now, Nights in Rodanthe is the latest of his novels that is being turned into a movie. Fans familiar with the book, however, are likely to be surprised at how the original storyline has been tweaked by scriptwriter Ann Peacock.

Directed by George C. Wolife, the film reunites Richard Gere and Diane Lane who first appeared opposite each

'n addition to J.K. Rowling, Nicholas Sparks is the only other in The Cotton Club (1984) and later in Unfoithful (2002). Other than crow's feet caught on close-ups. it doesn't look as if time has either aged them much or diminished their ability to generate chemistry on the

At the beginning of the film we're introduced to Adrienne Willis (Lane), a married woman whose life is falling apart. We learn that in the past few months her father has died, her husband (Christopher Meloni) has dumped her and changed his mind, and her teenage child (Mae Whitman) has become impossible to live with.

Fortunately, Adrienne's best friend, Jean (Viola Davis), owns a bed and breakfast on Hatteras Island located right on the ocean along North Carolina's Outer Banks. Jean suggests that Adrienne stay at her B&B for a little rest and relaxation while Jean goes to Florida on business. However, Adrienne will have to take care of the one guest she's expecting while she's gone, a surgeon arriving from Raleigh for a four night stay.

It turns out that Dr. Paul Flanner (Gere) has his own emotional baggage. He has been inconsolable ever since a patient (Linda Molloy) accidentally died on his operating table. He also has some issues to work out with his 28-year-old son (James Franco), to whom he hasn't spoken in a year.

The inevitable happens when the two troubled souls in search of a little solitude find each other. Paul and Adrienne fall in love at first sight when they meet at the idyllic retreat. They share romantic candlelit meals and take long walks along the beach. All this unfolds during the off-season, so there shouldn't be any annoying disturbances on the deserted isle to spoil their time together. However, the plot is thickened by the approach of a hurricane and the unhappy family of Dr. Flanner's deceased patient.

Visually enchanting, Nights in Rodanthe is more memorable for its cinematography than for the dramas between the characters that are hastily introduced and unconvincingly resolved over the course of a very eventful weekend.

That's the trouble with trying to condense a 250-page novel into a 90-minute movie, character development is sacrificed in order to cram in all of the plot's sub-

Good (). Rated PG-13 for sensuality, partial nudity, and mild epithets. Running time: 96 minutes. Studio: Warner Brothers.

PU Football Closes the Deal with Style Beating Lehigh 10-7 on Last Second FG

here were 55 seconds left in the fourth Thanhelser. quarter last Saturday night when the Princeton University football team took possession at its own 33-yard line.

Locked in a 7-7 tie with visiting Lehigh before a crowd of 8,836 at Princeton Stadium, the Tigers could've played it conservative, running the ball to play for over-

Instead, senior quarterback Brian Anderson asked Princeton head coach Roger Hughes for the chance to ad lib and take a gamble.

"Brian says let's run a stutter and go to [Will] Thanheiser because they will come up and cover that," recalled Hughes. "We had never practiced it."

Hughes gave the go-ahead and Anderson proceeded to loft a 46-yard bomb which Thanheiser gathered in on the far sideline at the Lehigh 21.

Thanheiser was as surprised as anyone when the Tigers decided to air it out in

"I wasn't expecting that play to be called; we usually don't run deep routes," said

"I think they weren't expecting it either; teams usually try to go short and go out of bounds. Brian just put it up there and trusted me to catch it and I did."

A few plays later with two seconds left in regulation, Princeton put its trust in senior kicker Connor Louden and he delivered, booting a 32-yard field goal to give the Tigers a 10-7 win over the Mountain

For Thanheiser, the pass from Anderson was the culmination of hours of working together.

"I roomed with Brian this summer; he's one of my best friends," said the 6'2, 210-pound Thanhelser, who ended the evening with a career-high nine receptions for 120 yards as the Tigers improved to 1-1 on the season.

"We worked a lot the last two years waiting for Brian to get the chance to be the quarterback. It's working out so far."

Things weren't working so well for Princeton in the red zone during the first half. Although the Tigers piled up 238 yards of total offense in the first half, they only had a one-yard touchdown run by Jordan Culbreath to show for all that yardage.

Princeton's first drive ended at the Lehigh one when it was stopped short of the end zone on fourth down. On their next possession, the Tigers drove to the Lehigh two only to see that march end with a blocked field goal.

Thanheiser, for his part, was concerned that the squandered opportunities would come back to haunt Princeton.

"Obviously, you can't go the two-yard line on consecutive drives and have no points," said Thanheiser, a native of Houston, Texas.

That's not good football; that's something we've got to work on. We have to punch those in because sometimes

After a 37-24 opening day loss at The Citadel a week earlier which saw Princeton blow a 17.7 halftime lead, Thanheiser and his teammates were determined to close the deal.

N.J. Certified Expert No. 301

'Coach Hughes said it's four-quarter game, not a half," said Thanheiser. "Last week, we had a great first half and tonight he said we have to keep it going. We didn't turn the ball over this week so that's key for us.'

Hughes, for his part, was confident that the Tigers would ultimately come

"While we were frustrated, we were still relaxed," recalled Hughes. "We weren't pointing fingers at anybody; we said hey we just have to execute. Let's just keep this thing going and good things are going to happen.

For most of the second half, there weren't a lot of good things happening offensively for Princeton as it was stopped on downs on its first drive and then punted on its next three possessions.

fense found its stride, stifling yards in helping the Tigers improve to 1-1. the Mountain Hawks over the course of the second half. The Tigers held Lehigh to 115 yards of total offense and forced punts on the Mountain Hawks' first four possessions.

The signature moment for the Princeton defense came with a minute left in the fourth when senior nose tackle and tricaptain Matt Koch led the charge as the Tigers stopped Lehigh on a fourth and one

In Hughes' view, the Tiger defense played a critical role in the victory.

"I thought our defensive confidence grew as the game went on," asserted Hughes, whose defensive standouts included linebacker Steven Cody with a team-high 10 tackles and linebacker Jeff Jackson, who contributed nine tackles, a sack, and an interception.

"As the fourth quarter started, I really felt like they came up with some big stops and got our offense the ball a number of times and we didn't move the ball well enough on offense to capitalize on that. The big stop on fourth and inches will be a huge confidence builder for us.

The manner in which Princeton pulled out the win last Saturday should build confidence collectively as the Tigers head up Columbia (0-2) this Saturday to open their lvy League campaign.

"Any time you can win and win like that, you get confidence," said Hughes, who got 126 yards rushing from junior tailback Culbreath with Anderson ending the evening hitting 20-of-29 passes for 244 yards.

"Confidence is a blg thing. I think the league race is wide open with Harvard and Yale both getting beat today, they were the league favorites. It's a one game at a time thing and I am sure this team will look at it that way. But going into the league with a win and the way we won hopefully will give us more confidence to increase our level of play."

After a 2007 season which saw Princeton suffer several near misses in going 4-6, Hughes is hoping that the program can put that frustration behind it.

"Last year i felt like we let some of these type of games get away and frankly, I kind of harbored that all spring and all summer," said Hughes. "Now we have this first one and that kind of wipes it out. To see the look on these guys' faces in the locker room afterwards, that memory is pretty much erased.

For Thanheiser, the win over Lehigh helped erased the sour taste left by the opening day loss at The Citadel.

"I think after last week some of us were getting mad at each other for putting onr heads down in the second half," said

"I guess we showed tonight that even when things got down, we kept it going. We kept our heads up and kept playing hard. This team is great, we have great leadership. Everyone is responding; no one gives up on each other. We really believe in the team concept so its going great."

Princeton Men's Soccer Edges FDU 2-1; Aims to Take Momentum Into Ivy Opener

Going solely by the record, Barlow. it would appear that the S Princeton University men's soccer team is well on its Soccer team is well on way to a dismal season.

Coming into its game

Sunday at Fairleigh Dick-≥ inson University, Princeton inhad lost five of its first six games.

But Tiger head coach Jim Barlow brought a feeling of confidence into Sunday's 🖀 game.

"We have been playing well in the recent stretch of games; we have been frustrated by the results," said goal by Brandon Busch and a this season. Last Sunday, Burton notched the winning goal as

Princeton won 2-1 at Fairleigh Olckinson to snap a three-game losing streak. In upcoming action, the Tigers, now 2-5, play at undefeated Loyola (Md.) on October 1 before hosting Dartmouth on October 4 In the Ivy opener for both teams.

"We went out to Chicago and gave two Top 10 teams (University of Illinois at Chicago and Northwestern) Coming into its game last very good games. We lost a Sunday at Fairleigh Dick- heartbreaker to Monmouth in overtime the other day. If you take away the play in Barlow, whose team outshot have to do well if the Tigers both boxes, we look pretty good. We are moving the ball well. We just have been letting the attack stall at times, pulling the trigger at the wrong time."

On Sunday, the Tigers were on target as a first half late tally by Ben Burton gave Princeton a hard-earned 2-1 win over FDU. The Tigers certainly needed that victory as they look ahead to starting lvy League

"It was a good effort," said FDU 11-8 and held a 6-3 edge in corner kicks.

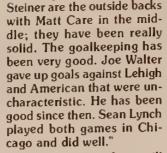

"I thought we had a very good first half. Busch took a free kick from Burton and finished it. In the first 30 minutes of the second, FDU had its best stretches. They had a lot of possession and some good chances. They got their goal on a penalty kick. We came back; Benny got on the end of a free kick from Devin Muntz. That was a good win over what we think is a good team."

In Barlow's view, his players believe that they are a good team notwithstanding their current 2-5 record.

"Our guys have played some of the best teams in the country pretty evenly," said Barlow, whose team plays at undefeated Loyola (Md.) on October 1 before hosting Dartmouth on October 4 in the ivy opener for both teams.

"They know they are good; just about every game we've had good stats in terms of shots and corners.

Princeton's strength this fall has been a consistently good defense. "I am pretty happy with our defending, asserted Barlow, whose team is giving up just 1.43 goals a game.

The Princeton defense will are going to hold off No. 17 Dartmouth (5-2) on a day in which Myslik Field at Roberts Stadium will be formally dedicated.

"Dartmouth presents a lot of challenges," said Barlow. "Athletically, they are big, strong, and fast. They also have some really good soccer players. One forward played on New Zealand Under-20 team (Craig Henderson) and the other is from Zimbabwe (Lucky Mkosana). They are a handful."

Barlow is confident that his team will give Dartmouth all it can handle.

"I think we are pretty sharp right now," said Barlow. "The big hurdle was showing the mental strength to come through and win a close game. We did that against FDU so that should help us. We know how to stay tight and organized. We just need to be strong enough mentally to do things right in the boxes to get the better of the other teams."

PU Sports Roundup

PU Field Hockey Keeps Rolling

Senior star Holly McGarvie had another big game as No. 15 Princeton cruised past 18th-ranked Albany 6-3 last Sunday.

McGarvie scored three goals as the Tigers won their fourth straight game. Freshman Kathleen Sharkey chipped in two goals and Kaitlyn Perrelle added the other as Princeton improved to 7-1 on the season.

The Tigers play at Columbia on October 2 before hosting Providence on October 5.

PU Women's Runners Dominate H-Y-P Meet

Senior star Megan Brandeland set the pace as the seventh-ranked Princeton country team placed first in the annual H-Y-P meet last Saturday at Yale.

Princeton had the top six finishers in the race, led by Brandeland's winning time of 17:45.61 over the 3.1 mile course.

Sophomores Sarah Cummings and Ashley Higginson each finished within a second of Brandeland as they took second and third, respectively. Freshman Alex Banfich finished fourth with junior Liz Costello placing fifth and junior Reilly Kiernan coming in sixth.

With the top six finishers in the race, the Tigers won with a team score of 15. Harvard was second with 52 points and Yale third with 71.

The Tigers will have a busy day on October 3 as they compete in the Paul Short Run at Lehigh with some of their runners also taking part in the Notre Dame Invitational.

PU Men's Water Polo Has Big Weekend

Sophomore goalkeeper Mike Merlone led the way as the Princeton University men's water polo came up big on the road last week-

Merlone made a total of 40 saves as Princeton posted three victories and was later

"Benny Burton and Danny University women's cross named as the Collegiate Water Polo Association (CWPA) Southern Division Player of the Week for his efforts.

> Merlone and the Tigers started the weekend with a 15-14 win at Johns Hopkins as Merlone made 15 saves in the victory. Later that day, the Tigers put forth a strong defensive effort in a 7-3 triumph at Navy. Merlone made 11 saves in the win. Princeton completed the weekend with an 11-9 victory at George Washington as Merlone made 14 saves.

> The Tigers, now 6-4 overall and 3-0 in the CWPA, are next in action when they start their annual California swing with a game at USC on October 10 before playing in the SoCal Tournament on October 11-12.

PU Women's Volleyball Wins Seton Hill Invitational

The Princeton University women's volleyball team completed a sweep of the Seton Hill Tournament with a 3-2 victory over Division III powerhouse Juniata last Saturday.

Lieb Takes MCT First Singles Crown Again, Helping PDS Girls' Tennis Place 2nd Overall

After going undefeated guard down." last season as a freshman. Samantha Lieb got off to a rocky start in her second campaign with the Princeton Day School girls' tennis team.

The talented Lieb suffered two defeats in the first 10 days of the season, falling to Olivia Walton of the Hill School and Emma Levy of the Lawrenceville School.

Mercer County Tournament last week looking to win her second straight title at first singles, she viewed her early season losses as a blessing in disguise.

"It is a good learning experience because you can learn from your mistakes,' sad Lieb.

"It was definitely tough because I finished my freshman year undefeated and now I already have two losses. I learned that there is definitely competition that you can never let your hitting it from side to side;

Lieb certainly didn't let her quard down at the MCT as she cruised to her second straight first singles crown, not dropping a set in the process.

Lieb's achievement helped PDS moved up to second in the team standings, an improvement of two places over last year's showing.

In placing second to As Lieb headed into the WW/P-S, the Panthers saw Lauren Constantini placed third at second singles, Nicole Keim take second at third singles with the first doubles pair of Elena Bowen and Samantha Schaeffer finishing fourth and the the second doubles team of Britttany Christian and Ariel Multak coming in third.

> Lieb, who topped Hun's Kara Shoemaker 6-3, 6-1 in the title match, thought her increased power made a big difference.

"I have been working on in high school tennis and stepping into the ball and it worked well for me today," said Lieb.

"I thought I played really well, I was working on and Hun on October 7. hitting my slice shot and coming forward a little bit. playing aggressively. It worked to my advantage."

A positive mindset was another weapon in Lieb's arsenal. "I definitely didn't let my head down," asserted Lieb.

"I kept my shoulders up and I hoped to win. I had a good draw because I was first seed; I had good re-

For Lieb, seeing the rest of her teammates do well was as inspiring as her individual triumph.

"It is wonderful to help out my team," said Lieb. "We all came to the semifinals this year which is re- to the side but I think we ally good for us. We have ' are all one big family.' never done that."

PDS head coach Patty Headley viewed her team's second-place finish as a

"We haven't done that for a while," sald Headley "I don't have any archival information but I think we usually end up around third or fourth, sometimes fifth. This is really a nice win."

In Headley's view, the team's chemistry makes coaching it a nice job.

"For the most part, we have a lot of sophomores; they all get along really well," said Headley.

"It does take work because there are a lot of different personalities involved with a lot of different ambitions and a lot of different beliefs in themselves. They all hold each other up. They comfort each other; they congratulate each other.

It is certainly a comforting feeling for Headley to have Lieb at the top of her

"Sami works hard; she has worked hard at her game since she was a little girl," said Headley.

"I think It is really cool to be a two-time winner of the MCT when you are only 15 years old. She just gets stronger. Kara Shoemaker put up an unbelievable fight; the score didn't reflect the play. I don't think that I have seen that kind of power that Sami showed in a long time."

Headley liked the fight she got from Constantini and Keim in the other singles spots.

"Ever since Lauren has walked on the court for us, she has been a toughie," added Headley. "Nicole is a good solid player; I can just see her getting better and better.'

The PDS doubles teams are also getting better as the season goes on. "I wish I could have them pay together for two more weeks before this tournament," asserted Headley, whose team hosts Peddie on October 1, plays at Wardlaw-Hartridge on October 4 and then hosts Gill St. Bernard's on October 6

"They are both really just starting to come together as a team. I am thinking that certainly in a couple of weeks towards the middle or end of the season, both of them are going to be much better.'

Lieb, for her part, thinks that the Panthers have the team cohesion to be a a force by the time the end of the season rolls around.

"I think we will do really well in Prep B," said Lieb. "It is all about communicating and we do that very well. I think we are definitely on the same page. Last year the freshmen and sophomores were a little bit

LEGALFORUM

All Grown Up? Top Ten Questions on Why — and When — Child Support Ends

If you are divorced and have children, then you a child enrolled in graduate or professional school. will likely pay or receive child support intil your children are legally "emancipated." Emancipation is well-defined under New Jersey law: A child is presumed to be emancipated at age eighteen, but typically child support will not terminate in New Jersey until graduation from college. Case law has carved out various circumstances that may delay emancipation. Some of the most frequently asked questions on this topic include the following:

t. Doesn't Child Support "Automatically" End at Age Eighteen?

No, not necessarily, and not typically. The presumption of emancipation is rehuttable. A hetter indication of emancipation than age is self-sufficiency. As long as a child depends upon the parents primarily, but not exclusively, financially—the payor has a support obligation. If the court finds that the child has moved beyond the "sphere of influence" of her or his parents, the child is emancipated.

2. What if My Child Turns Eighteen but Has Not Yet Graduated from High School?

An eighteen-year-old attending high school is not emancipated. Although she or he may vote, the dependent relationship with the parents still exists—a high school senior is probably eating three meals a day from home, borrowing the family car and getting spending money from mom and dad. In other words, he or she has not yet "ohtain[ed] an independent status on his or her own."

3. What if My Child Is in College?

A college student, under most cocumstances, is still dependent on his or her parents. New Jersey courts have ruled that parents must continue to support a child who is enrolled in a full-time undergraduate program, whether living on campus or at home, The payor must continue to pay support even if, as is sometimes the case, he or she does not pay college tuition. However, it is typical that child support may reduce upon the child's entry into

4. What if My Child Attends College Parttime?

A child attending college part-time and also working may be deemed emancipated. The inquiry is highly fact-sensitive, and the outcome would depend on which parent—the payor or the payee makes the most compelling showing to the court. Whether a child works full-time and earns enough to support her- or himself may affect the outcome. As in all emancipation disputes, the parent seeking to emancipate the child bears the burden of proof.

5. What if My Child Dropped out of College but Wants to Re-enroll?

Not uncommonly, a child enrolls in college immediately after graduating from high school, then takes a hiatus from his or her college studies after several semesters. He or she may be able to return to college and regain unemancipated status. Important factors for the court when evaluating this issue would include the length of and reason for 6, What if My Child Finishes College and Heads Straight to Graduate School?

Typically, a child is emancipated upon graduation from college or trade school. However in limited cases, parents were required to continue to support

Again, the rating would depend on the family and child's partiental encomstances.

7. What if My Child Enlists in the Military?

Certain events clearly render a child emancipated under New Jersey law. A child who enters the armed forces is deemed emancipated because the United States government, in effect, assumes the role of a parent. A child who enrolls in a military institution such as West Point may be emancipated even though she or he is essentially attending col-

8. What if My Child Marries?

A child who marries is deemed emancipated.

9. What if My Child Itas a Health Problem? Parents are obligated to support a child who has a physical or mental condition or disability, such as severe depression, that renders that child analyle to care for her or himself. Under rare circumstances, a child may never be emancipated for example, an adult child who suffers from a severe disability that arose prior to emancipation.

10. What if My Child Suffers from a Substance Ahuse Problem?

Again, this is a very fact-sensitive issue. A child with a substance abuse problem may or may not be entitled to ongoing support from her or his parents. The outcome for an eighteen-year-old high school student who develops a substance ahuse problem and temporarily drops out of high school would likely differ from the outcome for a twenty-yearold college student, who because of repeated drug addiction problems fails and drops out of college.

11. Emancipation and Your Circumstances

Every New Jersey family is different, and you may have your own unique questions about einancipation: What if your child joins the Peace Corps? Or delays college to travel the world? Or turns down salaried employment to volunteer for a presidential campaign? Often, the issue of emancipation is a "close call," and the decision turns on which parent makes the most legally sound argument supported by proof that the court finds sufficient. Even if you believe the outcome of your application should be obvious, a court may see your family's situation differently. Because so much is at stake financially, if you are involved in a dispute with your former spouse about whether child support should continue, you may need the assistance of an experienced attorney. A Riker Danzig family law attorney can make an informed argument to the court on your behalf and increase your chance of phtaining a favorable outcome.

Giacalone Taking Center Stage in Trenches, Helping PHS Football Trample WW/P-N 31-0

₩something about dealing 8 with high expectations.

When he joined the Princeton High football program Sin 2005, he had some major က္ညို footsteps to fill.

One of his older brothers, ₹Vinny, was a star quarter-- back for PHS while a second ≥ brother, Frank, had emerged Sas a force on the line for the Little Tigers. Currently SVinny is a senior tight end at Carnegie Mellon and Frank is a sophomore offensive Stackle at Lehigh University.

The third Giacalone felt the pressure of the family legacy. "These coaches have coached both of my brothers," said Giacalone.

"When I came in, i was expected to be just like them. Ît's hard because maybe I am not as good as them. I am heroics gave PHS a jolt as

ALL IN THE FAMILY: Princeton High senior football star Joe

ick, and older brother Frank, a former PHS star lineman, after

Lehigh played at Princeton last Saturday. The day started off well for the Glacalones as PHS routed WW/P-N 31-0 but ended on a bit of a sour note for them as Princeton edged Lehigh 10-7 on a last-second field goal.

Joey Giacalone knows definitely working on it."

Last Saturday, the senior center saw that work pay off, leading an offensive line that helped PHS trample WW/P-N for 306 yards rushing as the Little Tigers cruised to a 31-0 victory and improved to 2-1 on the season.

For the first 23 minutes of the contest, it didn't appear that a rout was in the offing as both teams moved the ball but neither put any points in the board.

With 52 seconds remaining in the second quarter, PHS junior running back Josh Gordon ran through and past the WW/P-N defense for an electrifying 85yard touchdown gallop that gave the Little Tigers a 7-0 lead at halftime.

Giacalone said Gordon's room for half. "We were really struggling to break plays; I talked to coach [Steve Everette] and we figured out the defense and where they are going," recalled Giacalone. Everyone just did what they had to do. Coach got talking to us at half and told us what we had to do to put this game away. We knew that we had full control over this game. Everyone was pumped up; everyone was ready to go.

The Little Tigers kept going in the second half, scoring 10 points in the third quarter and adding 14 in the final 12 minutes of the contest.

In the process, PHS broke the will of the WW/P-N defense. "Their defense was getting tired, " said Giacalone.

"They stayed on the field: we had a couple of long drives where we subbed people out because we have confidence in a lot of guys. They were all yelling at each other; it wasn't a good atmosphere for the defense."

As a result, Giacalone had a good follow-up call to his brothers. "We call each other before every game," said Giacalone, who went to Princeton Stadium on Saturday evening to watch his brother play in the Lehigh-Princeton game.

"We talk about what we need to do to win that game; our responsibilities and just how we are going to do it."

PHS head coach Everette liked the way the Little Tigers took care of their responsibilities on the Gordon scoring play.

"It was a huge lift; it definitely took the wind out of their sails," said Everette, who got 182 yards rushing on the day from Gordon with bruising junior Trevor Barsamian rumbling for 81 yards.

"They thought we were going to throw the ball.

areas," explained Everette.

'In the second half, we just concentrated on hitting that counter play in the same spot except that we changed the running back and we used Trevor. When you are tired and down a little bit, tackling 240 pounds is just no fun. Our kids get a huge lift out of creating seams for him so he can go out and punish people when he runs the ball.

In Everette's view, Giacalone and his mates on the line have been giving the Little Tigers a huge lift on a daily basis.

'They have been getting us through practice; they are the one pushing each other," said Everette.

"They make us go; Joey makes all of our line calls and Tommy Hines is our spiritual guy. When we need a big play, he is usually around the ball. That's what you hope your seniors do when they get the opportunity to play.

The youngest Giacalone is making the most of his opportunity to add to his family's legacy.

Giacalone, for his part, has developed some high expec-tations for PHS. "We have a lot of people we are confident in," said Glacalone.

PHS Girls' Soccer Has Commitment But Needs to Develop Finishing Touch to post its first win of the season, the Princeton High girls' soccer team was determined to make it two in a row as it hosted Notre Dame last Thursday.

From the opening whistle of the contest, PHS showed a commitment from defense all the way up to the forward as they flew all over the pitch on a windy day at Valley Road field.

But as the game went on, it became more and more apparent that the bounces just weren't going in favor of the Little Tigers. A Carly Edgcomb goal was waved off due to an offsides call and several shots just missed, including one that clanged off the crossbar with seven

Notre Dame, meanwhile, put pressure on PHS goalie Gabby Vukasin and the junior star was more than up to the challenge for the first 75 minutes of the game.

With five minutes left in the second half, the Irish got numbers in the box and managed to get a shot past Vukasin for what turned out to be the only score of the

The impact of falling short after such a hard effort left several of the PHS players in tears as they gathered for a post-game huddle near their bench.

Afterward, PHS head coach Greg Hand reflected his team's disappointment

We had a really strong team effort today, Notre Dame was a fast athletic team," said Hand, whose team started the season with 3-0 losses to Hightstown and Hopewell Valley before the 1-0 win over Nottingham.

as he assessed the set-

"We played better against them than we did against the equally fast, athletic teams we played in the first two games. We're missing open nets a lot. Everybody up top has to keep working; finding ways to convert those opportunities into goals and develop confidence.

The failure to convert opportunities was particularly upsetting considering that the Little Tigers squandered a superb effort by goalie Vukasin.

'Gabby was brilliant, she had a lot of presence in the box," said Hand of Vukasin, who is a leading scorer for the PHS girls' ice hockey team.

"She made some saves in very tight conditions; she's never intimidated, very enthusiastic. She's a natural and she works hard on getting better. She gives the team a great deal of confidence.

PHS got confident play on its backline which was spearheaded by sophomore Ali Salazar together with seniors Casey Moran and Lizzy Price.

"Although Ali is a sophomore, she is a veteran for us now. Casey played a rock solid game today. Lizzy Price is a very consistent stopper; she is solid."

The Little Tiger midfield is also solid with junior Adi Debiche and senior Carly Edgcomb leading the way.

"We decided recently to play Adi more up in the midfield; she's been really helping us there, winning balls and making good decisions," said Hand.

"She plays the ball quick with good quality. We are playing Carly in a spot where a lot of what we do in the final third goes through Hand acknowledges that PHS has to improve in the final third of the field.

"We just have to get better coordinated and read each other better," said Hand.

"There is an element of pure finishing involved; that will just come with time. When it becomes your job to be the person who has to put the ball in the net; that is a lot of pressure. All you can do is just keep developing your generic skill and just keep getting better at figuring things out in situ-

The team's work ethic has Hand confident that the problems with finishing can be solved.

"The kids understand how hard they have to play," said Hand, whose team plays at Trenton High on October 1 and at Allentown on October 3 before hosting WW/P-N on October 7.

"It's hard to play that hard and that fast and still settle the ball and the space as quickly as the game demands so we just need to keep working. They have been working hard and I know that it will come along."

The Little Tigers have been getting some inspirational work from younger runners like junior Damien Nagle and sophomore Aaron Thomas.

"We have guys poised for breakout," said Woodside. "Damien is getting to the point where he believes in himself. Aaron is going to be very good for us. We have brought him along slowly because his legs were really bothering him the first two weeks of Sentember, I thought he ran pretty well on Tuesday but he was disappointed. He thinks he can do better and if he does, that will be good."

For the Hun School girls' tennis team, winning seven straight Mercer County Tournament titles took plenty of talent.

But in the view of longtime Hun head coach Joan Nuse, the program's championship run was due to something more than skill on the court.

"It's been a great group of kids for all these years," said Nuse, who is in her 22nd season guiding the Raiders.

"A lot of the kids still stay in touch; they feel proud of being part of the group. I was at a viewing for [former player | Alex Connell's mom last Friday and Alex was talking about how she got so much support even now from the girls when her mom was dying.'

Last week, the Raiders

trailing champion WW/P-S and runner-up Princeton Day School.

While Nuse was disappointed that her team's title run came to an end, the setback highlighted what the program accomplished over the years.

"The thing I was thinking about today is that most of these kids were even in middle school when the run started," said Nuse.

"So to think about it, you realize that it's been so long and through so many kids."

Nuse was proud of how her kids fought at this year's MCT. "I think that they did the best that they could today," asserted Nuse. "That's all you can ask."

Leading the way for Hun was junior Kara Shoemaker, the second-place finisher at first singles, sophomore Befell short in their bid for an atrice Falk, the runner-up at eighth straight crown as they second singles, and sophoplaced third in the MCT, more Natalia Arenales, who took fourth at third singles. Falk showed grit at second singles, outlasting Hopewell Valley's Kyle Smith 6-3, 6-7, 7-5 in a three-hour marathon in the semifinals in order to get a shot at the title.

Beatrice did amazingly well," said Nuse of the sophomore transfer who fell to Sahana Jayaraman 7-5, 6-0 in the championship match. 'I can't even imagine that she is still standing, she must be so exhausted. She just kept trying the whole wav.

Falk, a native of Sweden who lived the last three years in Japan before coming to Hun, received a dose of the team's special spirit upon her arrival at the school.

"I think it has been great because I never actually played on a team for a school before, it's so much fun," said Falk.

There is a nice team spirit. It has made the transition much nicer to have the tennis team and the friends."

While Falk acknowledged that she was tired after her long day, she relished her journey to the final.

'It was a lot of fiin," said Falk. "I like matches better when they are long, you feel like you have made an effort. I got really tired after the first set of the final match; I couldn't really keep up the pressure in the second set.

Nuse liked the way Shoemaker dealt with the pressure at first singles. "I thought that Kara did very well; she had several tough matches," added Nuse of her junior standout who fell to PDS star Samantha Lieb in the title match for the second straight year.

"The girl from Stuart (Alex Abad] played really well against her; the girl from Pennington [Axe Owens] was a nice player. Sarah Cen from Princeton High is another good player. She didn't get any breaks; it's not like she had an easy route. I think that having the experience from last year probably helped."

Hun's third singles player, Arenales, another sophomore transfer, got some good experience as well.

"Natalia is a nice allaround player," said Nuse. "She is a very nice girl, I think that having a couple of girls who are new and not from the area has really helped bring the girls together because they know they need support."

As Nuse looks ahead to rest of the season, she believes her team can put things together.

"I think this will help us." asserted Nuse, whose team has road matches at Bridgewater High on October 1, at Lawrenceville on October 4, at WW/P-N on October 6, and at PDS on October 7.

"Now that they have seen what they can accomplish and what is out there, I think it will help them to continue to be tough against all kinds of different opponents."

Collins, for her part, thinks that Hun will have the intensity it needs to have a big season.

Boys' Soccer: Sam Kotowski had another big game as PHS edged visiting Pennington 2-1 last Monday. Senior star Kotowski and Anastacio Perez each found the back of the net as PHS improved to 6-0 on the season. The Little Tigers host Trenton on October 1 and Allentown on October 3 before playing at WW/P-N on October 7.

Lawrenceville

Footbalf: Aaron Aiken's run for a two-point conversion provided the margin of victory as Lawrenceville topped Mercersburg Academy 8-7 in overtime last Saturday. The teams were locked in a scoreless tie after regulation. After Mercersburg took a 7-0 lead in the extra session, the Big Red answered back with one-vard touchdown run by Dale Critz. Lawrenceville decided to go for the two-point conversion and the gamble paid off as it improved to 2-1 on the season. The Big Red host Hun on October 4.

Field Hockey: Displaying a balanced attack, Lawrenceville topped Springside (Pa.) 4-0 last Monday. Eliza Becker, Lindsay Becker, Caroline Dittrich, and Maddie Smit each scored as the Big Red improved to 5-1 on the season. In upcoming action, Lawrenceville plays at Princeton Day School on October 1 before hosting Hun on October 4.

PDS

Football: Senior quarterback Dennis Cannon had a big day but it wasn't enough as PDS fell 32-18 at George School last Saturday. Cannon threw a 50-yard touchdown pass and scored on a one-yard run as PDS fell to 1-3 on the season. The Panthers host Red Lion Christian Academy on October 3.

Field Hockey: Sophomore star Sydney Jenkins came up big once again as PDS rolled to a 6-1 win at Blair Academy last Saturday. Jenkins scored two goals and had an assist with her sister, Mariel, tallying two goals and freshman Jenna

The Princeton PC User Group will meet on Monday. October 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the Mercer County Library, Route 1 South and East Darrah Lane, Lawrenceville, to hear a talk by Jim Bartolomei and Jaime Campbell on "The Paperless Office: A Real-life Implementation.'

Mr. Bartolomei is the founding and managing partner of Bartolomei Pucciarelli, LLC, a Lawrenceville accounting firm he started in 1986. Ms. Campbell is a senior accountant/advisor with the firm.

The term "paperless office" is now used to describe a company that uses modern technology to create, edit, store, and share electronic documents, minimizing, but not necessarily eliminating paper. Mr. Bartolomei and Ms. Campbell have been instrumental in the deployment of the paperless system at Bartolomei Pucciarelli — Mr. Bartolomei as administrator, Ms. Campbell as a user.

Guests are welcome to attend all Princeton PC User Group meetings. For more information, visit www. ppcug-nj.org or call (908) 218-0778.

The Red-Headed League of Jersey, a society of Sherlock Holmes aficionados, will hold its next meeting on Friday, October 10 at Soriano's at Parkside, 141 Old York Road, Bridgewater. Potential new members and guests are welcome.

The evening will begin with a cash bar at 6:30 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner. The cost will be $30 per person, payable in advance by 723 Drake Avenue, Middlesex, N.J. 08846.

Bob Moss of Metuchen, a member of the Baker Street Irregulars, will present a paper titled "Means to Ends," an examination of how the Sherlock Holmes tales end.

Karen Reeds of Princeton will present the evening's quiz on "The Man with the Twisted Lip." The prize, a framed British shilling on parchment, will be awarded to the person with the highest score.

The Red-Headed League, which meets twice a year, is one of many scion societies of the Baker Street Irregulars, the leading American Sherlockian society. Members share a common interest in the consulting detective created in the 1880s by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle.

Beverly Youmans

Beverly Hamrick Beggs Youmans, 74, a longtime Princeton resident and wife of Dr. Roger Youmans and the late Dr. James Beggs, died September 22 at home following a long battle with ovarian cancer.

She was born September 23, 1933 at the Naval Hospital in Agana, Guam, where her father, Clilford D. Hamrick, was stationed as a military physician. After the family returned to the United States, they lived in Pensacola, Florida and San Diego, Calilornia. Upon her father's death in 1940. Beverly, her sister Elaine, and their mother, Clairebel Hamrick, settled down in Mrs. Hamrick's hometown ol Lanett, Alabama.

As a young woman, Mrs. Youmans was a popular high achiever who inspired those around her. She was valedictorian of her high school class and salutatorian at West Virginia Wesleyan College, where she graduated in 1955 with an honors degree in chemistry. She was voted Homecoming Queen for both her high school and college classes. She was also president of her sorority, Alpha Gamma Delta, and president of the Benzene Ring, the campus honorary chemistry organization.

Following her marriage to James Lee Beggs, the couple settled in Pittsburgh, where he fulfilled his internship and residency in neurosurgery at the University of Pittsburgh Medical School. Beverly helped support the couple by working as a researcher in polymer science and organic chemistry at the Melion Institute. While there she published several articles in national chemistry journals at a time when doing so was rare for women.

After Dr. Beggs' residency, he accepted a position gical Group and the couple Nassau Street at Vandevenfound a lifetime home in Princeton, where they began a family that included a son, Quinton, and two daughters. Kristin and Hilary. Beverly then became active in the Princeton United Methodist Church, serving on the board of trustees as well as multiple church committees. and singing in the choir. She was also a member of the United Methodist Women, taught swimming to adult women at the Princeton YWCA, and helped to administer the Princeton High School scholarship lund.

Shortly alter her husband's untimely death in 1985, Beverly went back to work as tour manager at the American Boychoir. a position that allowed her to pursue her lifelong love ol music. She soon became concert manager, arranging concerts, planning tours, and traveling with the choir to England, Taiwan, France, and other locales.

In 1997, alter retiring from the Boychoir, she married Roger Lee Youmans, general surgeon of Tulsa, Okla., and accompanied him on a humanitarian mission to Ghana, West Africa. While living In Ghana, she became actively involved in helping women and children better navigate their olten substandard living and health conditions. Most recently she has worked to establish a children's library in Amedzofe, a small village in a mountainous area of Ghana with no electricity or running Secluded Elegance. Nestled into a wooded setting, yet minutes from the center of Princeton, this French Provincial is surrounded by bluestone terraces and French doors. Inside, a grand foyer with curved staircase makes a stunning first impression; an oval leaded glass window in the fover's powder room hints at the details to come. The generously sized formal dining and living rooms both have access to separate terraces and the living room offers a fireplace. A sunken family room with tray ceiling, a fireplace flanked by built-ins and a wall of French doors adjoins the kitchen with expansive center island, glassfront cabinetry and Sub-Zero fridge. Tucked behind the kitchen are the laundry, a mudroom with back staircase and a second powder room. The opposite end of the main floor holds a wood-paneled library with fireplace and the luxurious master suite. Upstairs, two bedrooms adjoin two hall baths. A third bedroom has charming window seats and a fourth bedroom has a cozy, built-in captain's bed. A sunny apartment is accessed via a back staircase and connects to a large playroom. Princeton Twp.

A Half Acre of Natural Beauty In The Borough

You needn't choose between in-town convenience and a large lot brimming with the beauty of nature. Those seeking sanctuary will delight in the country atmosphere of this cottage-like house. Harry's Brook flows within the half acre property, which is enclosed by lush green growth and age-old trees. The house is ready for its next incarnation, and the sizable, open rooms with hardwood floors and picture windows are already on their way to making this house bright and beckoning. The living room has a fireplace with bluestone hearth, while the adjoining dining room's wraparound windows look out over stone paths winding through the backyard. The kitchen is nicely sized with a new range. Past a half bath are two adjoining rooms with loads of flexibility. There are three privately situated bedrooms. Two share a hall bath, while the master has a bath en suite. Newer furnace and central air keep this house comfy and cozy. Marketed by Laura Huntsman, 609.921.1050

Why Complicate Your Commute?

Save precious time and pricey gas by living within easy reach of your commuting route. Society Hill at Lawrence is convenient to 1-95, Route 1 and 206. The brick front townhouse has several recent upgrades including new flooring throughout. The entrance foyer steps down to the open living and dining room. A pass-through to the kitchen beyond allows busy cooks to socialize. A natural stone tile backsplash adds earthy panache and sliders usher in loads of sunshine. A powder room adjoins. Soft, neutral carpeting leads upstairs where two bedrooms share a Jack and Jill bath with cream-colored tile floor. The master bedroom quietly faces the rear. The laundry is neatly tucked behind doors in the hall. Pool, Clubhouse. Qualifies for NJHMFA Smart Start Funds, call for details.

TRENDS IN LUXURY HOME IMPROVEMENT--- PART II

Home improvements are up this year, especially in the luxury home arena. Last week we talked about the green improvements that are the most popular in high end real estate

Next on the list of favorife upgrades are kitchens and bathrooms. High end homes are expanding their culinary activities to more than one kitchen. A catering kitchen for dinner parties, a mini kitchen in the master suite for midnight snacks, and an outdoor kitchen for get-togethers by the pool are the latest additions to the traditional central tamily kitchen.

Luxury bathrooms are becoming full fledged spas with an emphasis on the shower. Multiple head rain and steam showers include aromatherapy, and chromotherapy (colored light therapy) features to wash away stress. Outside the shower, the sky's the limit. Luxury bathrooms are sumptuously fitted with everything from fireplaces, air-jet tubs, multimedia entertainment centers, wireless internet, wine coolers, smart toilets, electronic massage tables, dry saunas, tanning booths, espresso stations, and towel warming drawers

Some of these improvements may seem extravagant, but most luxury homeowners have very active lives, and it is important to have a stress-relieving refuge that can comfortably support a healthy, busy schedule

Just move right in to this Riverside beauty and enjoy the hard work and tasteful choices of the owners' updates and renovations. Situated on a prime cul-de-sac lot, every inch is pristine, up-todate and in perfect working order, including a new roof, windows and mechanicals. Upon entry, the open main level feels modern and airy with a soaring cathedral ceiling. The living room overlooks the covered stone porch and sun-dappled front yard, while the dining room opens to a deck, patio and the fully-fenced backyard. All of the wood floors are refinished, including the ebonized floor in the new kitchen, where built-in seating is surrounded by crisp white cabinetry and gleaming black granite. Step down to a family room with stone fireplace, new floor and new half bath. Upstairs, the master boasts a private bath dressed in creamy marble and black, while a large hall bath with hand-applied finish serves three additional ample bedrooms. You're home.

A masterfully executed expansion by Princeton Design Guild nearly doubled the size of this Colonial. Imported materials of the highest quality enhance dramatic, one-of-a-kind spaces. But the best craftsmen know when to step aside and give Mother Nature center stage. Expansive windows highlight age-old trees amid the gently rolling acreage. A rosewood deck and refurbished pool revel in the splendid setting. Year-round, the yard provides a dynamic welcome in the foyer via a picture window in the dining room ahead. A library with ceramic tile fireplace adjoins. Eucalyptus and mahogany are paired with Brazilian granite in the new custom kitchen. Complementary handcrafted built-ins outfit the technologically advanced media area within the two-story living room, where a tall pyramid of windows has a stunning conservatory effect. The original portion of the house has a game room, great for casual entertaining with a wet bar, and four bedrooms and three full baths. The airy, new master suite enjoys the privacy of its own level and the romance of a fireplace, plus a handsome new bath, dressing room with open shelving and a loft office. A separate in-law suite, home gym and wine cellar were also added. On a quiet cul-de-sac with sidewalks leading right to Palmer Square or the Princeton Battlefield.
